FEB. NCCC PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

February NCCC President's Message

Dave Heineman and Joe Vasta

IT'S ALL ABOUT LOVE!

I sat down to write this month's post for the NCCC web site and thought since February is the month with Valentine's Day, I would write about something else to think about.

I remember growing up a few years ago in the 60's and one of the common sayings was "make love, not war" I guess that is something that should be practiced even today. I know I would rather get along with someone than fight with them. Life is too short and gone before you know it. And making love can be fun!

Things and situations that would have set me off years ago don't seem to bother me as much now. I use to worry about money, and as I aged I realized I can't buy more time or health, but I can always get more money. I have to thank my eldest sister for teaching me that money is replaceable. I use to worry about having a nice home, new cars, at least one Corvette in the stable, and always trying to impress others how well we are doing.

Today as I look back on my life since high school and college, I find out how important friends and family are over all other things. Attending my 50th high school reunion last year, my wife and I left and I shared how lucky and blessed we are after visiting with some of the remaining graduates who are still alive. Too many are gone way too young, and many are still working and can't retire. And not one owns a Corvette, only me!

Joining a Corvette club in the 70's I became a member of NCCC. I didn't really know what NCCC was, just joined because the local club belonged to NCCC. In 1977 I attended my first NCCC Governors meeting and really got interested. In 1982 I was the proxy governor and in 1984 became the Governor. I have been attending meetings since, was a club governor, regional officer, NCCC Parliamentarian, 2011 Convention Director, and now NCCC President.

Over the years attending NCCC meetings, I have watched good things happen for the members and I have watched battles on the floor because of the passion members have for what they believe in. Some battles have turned member against member who have been friends for years. I think about the passion we all believe in and I respect everyone's opinion. In the world today those passions are really important, but are they as important a value in a social Corvette club as in the real world?

I think the difference of importance is what and who does it affect. If taxes or food, or gas increases, I don't like it. What happens in the world I may not agree with or like? But we belong to a National Council of Corvette Clubs, a social organization formed by people who own a car called a Corvette. NCCC needs to have guide lines. a membership fee to belong, and other rules to govern the organization so what we do is fair for all members. And yet our passion causes us not to get along or agree with what is going on sometimes.

Since Valentine Day is this month, I thought it would be a good time to start the year off with a little LOVE, to everyone and everybody. Try not to get upset with the little things in life. I have found communication in the key to success! Be willing to listen to someone else's passion as it is important to them. Try to understand we all don't always agree with each other, but we all have the same passion, The Corvette.

It's all about love! Some NCCC clubs and NCCC members felt upset with some things and did not rejoin NCCC in 2017. Insurance was a reason for some, and some members and clubs for other reasons. I don't think the reasons really matter, but I don't like that Corvette people are missing out on belonging to NCCC. NCCC is not perfect and will not always please everyone. But leaving for insurance reasons bothers me. Remember, it is $2.08 a month to belong to NCCC.

Joe Vasta, Region Executive for the East Region, wrote a great article in the 2016 Fall issue of Blue Bars. I have asked Joe for permission to add his article to my post this month. As members of NCCC we really need to think about how important members, friends, and club insurance are. Would you not insure your Corvette?

Remember, it is all about LOVE. And for sure get your Valentine something this month!!

Good second hand car.

Go ahead. Match the Corvette Sting Ray against the second hand. Put it through its paces the way you think a car like this one ought to be tried. Then come talk to us about sports cars. Tell us of another sports car with Corvette's combination of comfort, convenience and pure performance. Tell us of another sports car you can tailor so exactly to your desires—five engines, three transmissions, axle ratios from here to there and back again. And there are two different models. Mix to suit yourself. Show us another luxury sports car—even at twice Corvette's price—that can stop a watch the way the Sting Ray can. Go ahead. Tell us. If you can.
